The copy of SPARK you are holding is different from what we at AnimationXpress have brought out over the past few markets – ATF, Mipcom, and MipTV.

Indian animation is at the sprinters’ block – just waiting to race away into the fast-paced global industry.

Over the past few issues, our effort has been to highlight the achievements of studios that have made an impact globally, as well as reveal the hidden gems which are not satisfied with being simply homegrown.

Gradually we have expanded our coverage to include distributors, broadcasters, live action, digital producers and the efforts of local governments to attract investments in the AVGC sector.

Today, there is excitement among the breed of artists, studio owners, format creators, and TV production studios who have set their eyes on leaving their mark even outside India. Most of these have imbibed some learnings and are almost ready to play the global content game. A lot of more effort is being put in to create IPs that can travel, apart from the usual outsourcing work or just selling really long running finished dramas, series, and soaps to networks and OTT platforms.

ATF 2017 has the largest ever presence from India’s studios, distributors and broadcasters, and this issue has listed some of them for your reference. Green Gold, one of India’s leading animation studios, has sponsored the animation pitch in a bid to encourage creativity in Asia. TV producer and distributor One Life Studio, kids content producer One Take Media and infotainment channel Epic are exhibiting for the first time. A delegation of 13 under the Media & Entertainment Association of India is seeking to forge relationships with Asian and global players. India’s hunger to leave its content stamp worldwide is growing. You will chance across the players listed in this guide in future. Make a note of them in your diaries. Hopefully, our effort will prove useful to all the attendees at ATF.

This apart, we have also profiled a couple of Asian studios as we seek to expand our coverage over other nations in the region.

CEO, P. Jayakumar

What are your plans for ATF?
We plan every market meticulously and in much detail and Asia Pacific is one of our key territories. This ATF, we will be pitching a few of our brand new shows in development for co-production opportunities. Our sales and distribution team will be meeting with potential buyers to sell our IPs. We will be on the lookout for good partners to strategically collaborate with. We are also focusing on acquiring properties that would sit well on our digital slate or for our sales and distribution docket. Thus, we have a holistic approach towards ATF 2017.

Does the Asian content market look promising for animation? How is Toonz contributing to it?
I believe that the kids/animation market is very promising for Asia. Asia has the largest kids population in the world, with India and China probably in the first and second positions respectively. While the kids population is shrinking around the world, this growing trend here is indeed a strong indicator for Asia. Toonz has always contributed to the animation industry whether Asia in general or India in specific. With our creative, production, distribution and digital teams in full throttle, we are strongly expanding all over Asia. We are making brand new content specifically to suit the sensibilities of the Asian market, which would also travel the world. Our Asia-Pacific sales team has in its business plan to penetrate strongly into various Asian countries. We are also partnering with strong collaborators in Asian territories to strengthen our stronghold. Thus, Toonz as a front-runner is doing everything possible to take advantage of this opportunity.

How does India fare in terms of the Asian market?
To take a point from the previous answer, India has the largest kids population in the world. Brands, broadcasters and studios around the world are realising the huge potential that lies within India. I would say that the Indian animation industry has been expanding in geometric proportions in the last few years. Though India as a country wouldn’t top the list currently in terms of quality of animation among the Asian countries, I would say that it is only a matter of time. Toonz is trying to instill that sense of quality in whichever Indian partners we collaborate with. I am positive that soon India would be among the top animation producers. After all, we are the oldest and the truest lovers of art and storytelling. ✪
FUN Union
CEO, Christine Brendle

BabyRiki and KikoRiki are quite popular in China and Russia. Are you eyeing other Asian countries with these brands at this year’s ATF? Yes, definitely! We’re in advanced discussions in several markets from South Korea to India. Our goal is to make our programmes available to children all across Asia and the world. Our success in China has been outstanding. FUN Union was established as a company in February this year, and our PinCode series was broadcast on CCTV Kids in March, hitting 55 million views in just a month (including digital platforms). BabyRiki was launched on digital platforms in July and reached over 100 million views in just a month, and is now being aired on CCTV Kids since early November. Licensing deals are also being finalised as we speak.

What are your expansion plans for Europe?
Just last month, at MIP Junior, we announced a distribution agreement with Imira (a part of India’s Toonz Animation) who will lead our development in Spanish, Portuguese and Italian languages. We have already seen momentum there and wish to continue our expansion further north in Europe. Several discussions are on-going in French, German and Dutch speaking countries. And we wish to conquer the Nordic countries too, of course!

What more is in store for BabyRiki fans?
Next year we’ll have new seasons of our pre-school series BabyRiki and primary school series PinCode. And we’re working very hard on our co-production Krash and Hehe with CCTV Animation and Riki Group as well as developing season three of BabyRiki with some new enhancements. We’re very enthusiastic about what 2018 has in store for us as we continue to develop our series, as well as strengthen our promotional efforts with buyers and ultimately the consumers.
Myra Motion Pictures
Founder, Managing Director
Chandan Oza

What are your plans for ATF? What are you looking to explore at the market?
We are a young content studio that has developed numerous animation concepts. Our ideas are fresh and we place a lot of impetus on story and character development. We plan to associate with partners who are keen to co-produce or acquire original IPs that we have developed. We have conceived different IPs across genres and are also ready with a few pilot episodes. We are ready with both short and long format concepts. We are open to discuss any kind of arrangement ranging from developing our ideas jointly with partners, investing in our content, production and acquisition deals.

How do you plan on growing in the global animation market?
We specifically focus on creating content that could be aired anywhere in the world despite barriers of demography, culture and geography. We consciously work towards developing stories and characters that would connect with a kid instantly irrespective of one's cultural background or nationality. With these all-encompassing ideas, we aim to associate with buyers and partners across the world to enhance our reach. Alternatively we also undertake international animation service projects to widen our base which has helped us to imbibe cultural references from across the world.

(Chandan has conceived, directed and scripted popular Indian animation shows like BakwaasBandhKar with Bade and Chhote, BheegiBilli and The Betelnuts. He was also the voice of Chhote for eight years and has written and produced more than 5,000 minutes of animation content.)
Green Gold Animation
Founder & CEO, Rajiv Chilaka

How popular are your IPs in Asia?
In a space of 15 glorious years, Green Gold IPs have transformed into a household name and become a brand that has captured the hearts of young viewers across the region. Relatable characters, simple storytelling, and the ability to connect with the audience have been the mantras for us so far. Chhota Bheem enjoys a super brand status in Asia.

What is your idea behind the Animation Pitch at ATF?
Being surrounded by passionate and ambitious people, who share a similar love for animation, is a great way to feel inspired and expand intellectual horizons. It’s also important to give back to the entrepreneurial ecosystem in the animation industry, foster creativity and innovation. After all, animation is the craft of the soul.

Are you bringing any homegrown IPs to ATF?
Yes, we are bringing our latest IP Kalari Kids to ATF 2017. The graphic style of the show is reminiscent of the beauty, sophistication and stylisation of the traditional Kerala paintings.✦✦
HQ Studios
Director-Business Manager
Nikhil Nair

You own a lot of IPs. What are the plans for these IPs at ATF?
We have always endeavored to create story-driven content beyond the barriers of language. We take pride in our capabilities of creating original creative content where the concept and story is regarded as the most important factor. We don’t want to create content which becomes just another show but to create something timeless and impactful in the industry. We don’t want to be limited as to what we can achieve being a small studio. ATF is a place where we get to connect with a lot of like-minded industry people from across the globe. We do have a few IPs which we are planning to pitch to the investors/producers there. We are currently working on the pre-production of our IPs. We do have a strong team to deliver the required quality, all we need is funding to get the complete job done.

As a small studio, what growth prospects are you looking at?
As small animation studios we engage ourselves majorly in doing 2D and 3D animation for TV series working as a partner studio. What we aim to do in the next two years is to expand our team size and deliver work not only for 2D or 3D television series but also concentrate on doing animated movies for theatrical release. We are expanding our services in e-Learning and explainer videos for corporate companies and OTT platforms.

We have already taken steps to train and develop our new workforce by not just giving them software training but also helping them understand the industry work culture. We are handpicking freshers/artists looking for a job with an attitude to learn. We understand it’s difficult to get results immediately but over four to six months we will surely reap the benefits.

Also, we are in talks with a few investors to help us grow and expand our studio and get funding to work on our own quality IPs and to partner with other big and established studios to work out a co-production deal.

We are confident that attending events like ATF will surely help us take the next step in growing and developing our studio overall.
What opportunities do you hope to explore at this year’s ATF?
We will mainly focus on two areas, co-production and program distribution. For co-production we will be structuring multi-regional co-productions by connecting our existing multi-regional partners and resources, and for program distribution, we are bringing our TV series and new shows to the ATF market. These include: Harry & Bunny which has good ratings for Disney APAC and which is soon to have a worldwide release on Netflix; Magiki, our newly completed pre-school show, co-produced with Zodiac UK and DeAgostini Italy; SupaStrikas's fresh fifth season; Chuck Chicken and more.

Animasia co-produced Chuck Chicken the Movie with China’s Zero-One Animation. Do you have plans of a similar co-production?
Yes, a few high profile projects are in progress, we will announce more about them when the projects are ready to be launched.

Will you be interested in developing relationships across Asia?
Yes, this is what we are focusing on. Not only across Asia, we are working very hard in trying to connect to North America, south Asia, south-east Asia and China.

2017 has been an exciting year for Animasia so far. We’ve had many big breakthroughs for key focus markets worldwide- projects like Chuck Chicken with 1.4 billion views on the digital front and Harry & Bunny are performing extremely well in linear broadcast and very soon both the shows will have worldwide releases on Netflix.
How is Tik Tak Tail doing in Asia and globally?
Tik Tak Tail is currently performing really well in India. The show is in its third month of launch and has been growing consistently in its ratings. In fact Turner International India has mounted the show tremendously well using a well-defined strategy and promotional plan for the show. Turner International has exceptionally done a sterling job in promoting the show which has made it very popular in India. The content for the show is great and all these efforts have yielded fruitful results.

Tik Tak Tail has not been launched in the international market as of now. We launched it during MIPCOM and got a couple of good enquiries for it. We are in the negotiation stage for now and will be making an announcement very soon.

How do you ensure that the IPs you create cater to the international audience as well?
When it comes to shows like Tik Tak Tail (which we internally as a studio policy call crossover shows), they are generally created keeping in mind global audiences. So with a strong Indian connect, keeping in mind the creative standpoint, we try and amalgamate the best content, that’s appealing globally. Also it should be blended with the right India soul, making it feasible to traverse worldwide and deliver it well within the domestic market as well.

Animal protagonists universally are not only cute but also great as a narrative device, which makes them likeable. Stories that involve them have a whimsical appeal that makes them different and unique and explains well about real life human situations. We try and create content with emotions that are universal, yet more relevant for India and use them as drivers to grab audience attention. Thus we produce content in India that caters to the international audience as well.
AVGC freelance talent portal pushes globally

In today's fast-paced, competitive studio environment burdened with tight deadlines, one of the key challenges for producers is to build reliability by managing the production pipeline efficiently and delivering on the dot. Inability to instantly hire talent and scale-up infrastructure for large projects is proving fatal for many small and medium studios which are cost-conscious. Investing in full-time resources and high performance machines on a large scale is not viable for smaller studios prone to low productivity during long breaks between projects when expensive teams and infrastructure stay idle. Enter GAFXonline.com: an emerging 24/7 online marketplace positioned as the global confluence of producers and freelance artists in gaming, animation and VFX.

GAFX is passionate about addressing these challenges with affordable solutions: instant online access to quality talent on a project-basis as well as access to a high-performance production virtual pipeline on a pay-per-use-basis. GAFX’s proprietary platform leverages technology to allow participants connect and collaborate in a mutually-beneficial manner, while enabling them to cut costs, expedite production and improve sustainability.

How it works: Producers registered with GAFX can post their gaming, animation and VFX projects online and hire from the curated registered talent pool of freelance artists. The talent pool comprises of a wide choice of local and international artists with multiple specialisations and different skill/experience levels across gaming, animation and VFX. Similarly, freelance artists registered with GAFX can search and bid for a range of small, medium and large projects posted by registered producers. The projects are updated frequently, giving freelance artists a dependable and sustainable source of income. A secure online payment mechanism ensures easy and safe payment.

Value-for-money engagement model: GAFX helps studios/producers fast-track projects with considerable cost advantages, allowing for instant online hiring and precise artist-searches based on skill, experience, track record, location and a host of parameters to perfectly match talent with project requirements. With direct access to a vast pool of specialised, flexible and more affordable talent, registered producers can bypass the traditional staffing model which is expensive while also ensuring faster time-to-market.

Ever since inception, GAFX has been going great guns. GAFX commenced basic operations in September this year and launched its global online marketplace to a tumultuous response on 10 November 2017. In just two months, it attracted 1200+ freelancer registrations and the numbers continue to soar with fresh registrations every day. With registrations from experienced Indian and international artists across gaming, animation, VFX and graphic design, the quality and breadth of GAFX freelancers underscores the value for producers. Buoyed by the rousing initial response and driven by an aggressive marketing campaign, GAFX seeks to ratchet up the numbers and touch 10,000 registrations by the end of 2018.

The portal is also triggering a wave of interest from reputed gaming, animation and VFX studios as a variety of projects are flowing in at an encouraging pace. Particularly, international producers are eager to take advantage of the fact that a majority of artists registered with GAFX are from India where hiring costs are significantly lower than elsewhere in the world and the artist skill levels are on a par with the best in the world.

The fantastic response to GAFX’s presence at the recent MIPCOM 2017 at Cannes, France indicates the growing popularity of this freelance powerhouse. Many international producers at MIPCOM expressed interest in posting their projects on the GAFX portal to leverage the fast growing repository of talented artists. GAFX has set the ball rolling and in the months to come, studio owners / producers across the media and entertainment industry will reap the benefits of a highly resourceful project-enabler.

The freelance economy is booming across the world, driven by several talent-pairing platforms in sectors such as IT, consulting and more. Nevertheless, in the gaming, animation and VFX space, the lack of a dedicated, dependable and affordable talent-pairing resource for both the stakeholders remains a key challenge. While there are a few players focusing only on a single discipline and others catering to a bewildering array of unrelated industries, there is no single player devotedly catering to gaming, animation and VFX: all interlinked creative arts that collectively drive the media and entertainment industry globally. GAFX is bridging this gap with its proprietary services.

The magic wand: Soon to be introduced is GAFX’s scalable, secure, on-demand, and pay-by-use storage solution, designed to help studios increase productivity. It is sheer magic! Producers can go online with just a basic computer and access the customised storage space and organise and share data with intuitive management. GAFX enables cost-effective and apt cloud-based workstation class computing. With options customised to workflow, studios can access, edit and share new data directly from their GAFX storage.

What’s more, its cloud rendering with the perfect choice of hardware+software bundles helps studios maximise ROI. Building on these, GAFX envisions the virtual studio production pipeline wherein, producers can collaborate remotely with their teams scattered across the world and execute projects faster with measurable time and cost advantages. As this entire infrastructure is hosted on the cloud, there is no need to invest in high-performance machines, pipeline software, digital storage and software licences. Producers and artists can leverage the thoughtfully designed GAFX platform to focus on their arts and propel growth. These services will be rolled out in a phased manner and will be available for both studios and artists.
GAFX has many more initiatives in its pipeline, especially on the technology front, as that's the biggest factor influencing penetration of the freelance work model across the world. GAFX is continuously working on improving the online platform to simplify engagement and improve results for both freelancers and producers.

GAFX endeavours to build a global presence and emerge as the single-largest, online collaborative workspace in the world dedicated to promoting the interests of producers and freelance artists in gaming, animation and VFX. The enterprise is charting a bold growth strategy and innovating the game to deliver enhanced value. On the anvil is a franchise-driven strategy to augment business through a pan-India digital cafe chain offering virtual production infrastructure on a pay-per-use basis to freelance artists who are constrained to invest in high-end systems and tools but are competent and willing to work on GAFX freelance projects.

The initiative will help build momentum for project off-take, enable easy and cost-effective project execution for freelancers constrained with resources and boost the bottom line of GAFX with direct and indirect revenues.

GAFX is an initiative of Udaí Krishna and Neelima, an entrepreneurial duo with actionable exposure in VFX and IT. As a digital media and entertainment industry veteran with deep insights into the VFX value chain, Krishna has helmed vital projects for leading production houses specialising in films, TVCs, documentaries and theatrical trailers. With extensive certifications in 3D animation, VFX, cinematography, multimedia and 3D MAX, he combines academic rigour and professional depth to drive GAFX's mission.

Neelima on the other hand is a seasoned technology veteran, having served across the hierarchy at global IT companies. Her wealth of cross-domain IT experience across industries and her engineering background are helping GAFX innovate, create and navigate the technology infrastructure vital to enabling a superior user experience and adding value to GAFX's business drive.

The promoters are focused on promoting sustainable growth and wealth for stakeholders with the drive and dream to script the next success story in the media and entertainment industry. ✡

Email ID: otm@onetakmedia.in Website: www.onetakmedia.in Company Profile: One Take Media was formed to be a successful conduit between high quality content producers from across the globe and the right audiences. It specialises in content production, global content acquisition and distribution, providing value-added services (VAS) to global DTH platforms/cable platforms in genres like nursery rhymes, kids animated series and movies, Bollywood item songs, celebrity cooking shows, short films etc.

The company offers content licensing services, acquires TV rights, VAS/SVOD channels etc. across genres and formats. The content comes from One Take Media’s associated animation and movie studios besides its own production facilities.

One Take Media provides resources to help producers produce media content, help distributors distribute media content and acquire media content. It also provides consultation services like setting up a DTH business and supply all associated products like set-top boxes, CAS, dish antenna and accessories.

Shamoly Khera: “Due to a large number of digital avenues, the content is king today. The world is increasingly content driven today as audiences have as much say about the time of consumption as they have about the medium of consumption. Thus, truly specialised content catering to a wide segmentation of audiences will always be favoured by audiences. Hence, One Take Media aggregates content with higher audience connect and contemporary themes."

Dimpy Khera: “Every brainstorm at One Take Media inadvertently turns around ensuring content that has a high level of contextual connect with our audiences. Animated series or movies for kids or even mature content like cooking, we look for a spark that will form a bond with the audience and keep them hooked. That’s why you will find that our content speaks the contemporary language and adorns the same classy look and feel as today’s audiences have come to expect."

STUDIO FOCUS

In conversation with Shemaroo director Hiren Gada

Shemaroo has a huge content library including movies, music, shows. Can you give us a content breakdown for the platforms and territories that it goes to?

Shemaroo has been an integral part of the Bollywood industry for over 50 years and has a formidable and ever growing collection of over 3,500 titles. This makes it one of the leading Indian content providers for satellite channels and digital technologies. Our core strength is the deep understanding of the evolving Indian audience’s pulse and our long standing relationship with platforms across the world comprising Zee, Star, Sony, Viacom18, B4U etc. Our clients include Indian broadcasters with international presence, local broadcasters in international markets targeting local audiences and digital platforms with regional as well as global footprints.

Which territories have you explored? Which ones do you look forward to explore?

Bollywood has a universal appeal and is appreciated by audiences across the globe. While our content gets showcased in most parts of the world, we are actively reaching out to the Indian diaspora markets such as the Americas, Middle East, Singapore, Malaysia, Mauritius, the Pacific etc. as well as non-traditional markets which have an appeal for Indian content such as CIS, Romania, Turkey, Bulgaria among others. We are now exploring business opportunities in Latin America and sub Saharan Africa, as these markets are opening up to Indian content.

How many languages is the content dubbed and subtitled in?

In addition to catering to people in India in various regional languages, our content reaches the international audiences in Arabic, Russian, Malay, Bahasa, amongst others. We offer our partners customisation rights hence making our content very versatile and suitable for many geographies.

You have some big plans for the future. Could you share them?

Shemaroo is actively partnering with digital platforms for services both linear and non-linear. We are expanding our presence in the regional space such as Punjabi, Gujarati and Bhojpuri and have also made inroads in devotional and spiritual content as well. At Shemaroo, we are constantly evolving with changing audience preferences. For example, in the domestic market we saw consumers preference shifting to the value added service offering on DTH platforms and have successfully powered and curated services on Tata Sky, Airtel Digital TV, Dish TV, Videocon d2h, including cable platforms which span films in comedy, drama and action. We are now in talks to roll out these services in the international markets. While several tie-ups with platforms are already in place, we are exploring other opportunities as well.
